AWFUL TALE OF CRIME

Tells of Killings All Over Country
Including Tragedies at Delavan Lake—Often in Prison for Minor Offenses—
Was Church
Attendant.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The police today began their gruesome investigation of the almost unparalleled confession last night of Henry Spencer, that he is the murderer of sixteen persons. Possessing evidence to support his admission that he killed Mrs. Mildred Allison Rexroat, the dancing instructor, or on September 25, the authorities are convinced that they will in a short time, confirm Spencer's guilt of many if not all the crimes of his career. Following his arrest last night for the Rexroat murder, which was made at the home of a woman who had notified the police of his coming—detectives went to Spencer's room where they found the tango teacher had taken with her on her fatal trip to Wayne. She was lured there on the pretext that she was to instruct a class in the new dance. In it was part of her clothing and, not far away, the revolver with which Spencer ended her life. Sure He Will Hang. Enroute to the detective bureau Spencer admitted to Chief of Detectives John J. Halpin, that "I've got the goods on me. I know I'll swing for this." Then began his extraordinary recital of the murders he has committed the list of victims growing longer as the questioning continued on through the night. By morning Spencer had asserted that he had sent the following to their graves and told repeatedly the manner of their going: An Appalling List. One of two farmers, shot near Zion City, Ill., the spring of 1903. Peter Niedermier, one of the car barn bandits, who afterwards was hanged, killed the other, he said. Obtained $500.

Policeman Timothy Devine and Charles Pennell, shot in August, 1902, when they surprised Spencer and a man named Murphy breaking into a house. Murphy now dead.

Fannie Thompson, body found January 1, 1903. Gagged and bound in bed in a Michigan avenue rooming house. Robbed of diamonds worth $1,200.

Murders For Money. Former wife at Belle Isle, Mich. Beaten to death and body burned. Former New York widow, name forgotten.

Former wife near Fort Montgomery, N. Y., beaten to death in woods. Robbed of $300 and diamonds worth $800. Former maid to Helen Gould.

Aged man in Washington Park last spring. Shot and body thrown in lagoon. Got $200 in cash.

Two girls at Paw Lake, Mich., in May or June. Beaten and bodies thrown in water.

Reports Delavan Killing. Girl at Delavan Lake, Wis., in June killed with hammer and body thrown in lake.

Woman in house near county hospital. Used hammer and burned clothes. Got $140 and rings.

Woman in house at Fulton, and Halstead streets about eight months ago. Used hammer and burned clothing. Robbed house.

Sulzberger on Van Buren street near Aberdeen. Shot man and wounded wife while robbing saloon.

Man shot and killed in alley under South Side elevated about a year ago. Mrs. Mildred Allison Rexroat, shot near Wayne, September 25, and body placed on railroad tracks.

Ida Oliver killed with hammer on November 8, 1912, body thrown into drainage canal and recovered May 29. Born in Chicago.

The man who claims this almost unbelievable record is a Chicago product. He does not know his real name and the first he remembers he was in the home for the friendless located within a block of the scene of his arrest last night.

He has spent half of his thirty-two years in the state penitentiary at Joliet. He was sentenced twice for wholesale robberies and was returned twice following violation of paroles.

He is short weighs about 145 pounds wear glasses and has the appearance of a clerk whose life has known little excitement.

Was Church Attendant. He has been a devout worshiper at the prayer meetings of the Emanuel Baptist church and attended the wedding of his pastor's daughter three nights before he accompanied Mrs. Rexroat down the lonely stretch of railroad track near Wayne, grasped her by the neck and placed a revolver to her head.

And, in a manner as unconcerned as though he was repeating the number of dances he had attended, Spencer sat with detectives and newspaper men in the office of Captain Halpin and told of the lives he had taken. Details as to names and dates he could not always supply, but as to whether he "beat 'em in the head with a hammer" or "shot 'em to death," his memory was better.

Addicted to Opium. He also remembered approximately how much money or jewelry he got from his victims. He said he did not drink or smoke—except opium. He repeatedly asserted that he had not "touched a pill" for two days and a physician who examined him declared the prisoner was not under the influence of the drug.

"My head is as clear as a bell," Spencer said. "You have got me dead to rights on the Rexroat murder and I know that I shall be hanged in a couple of months. That is why I want to tell all and then be treated decently until they pull the ropes."

After hours of questioning Spencer was asked why he had lived as he had.

Hounded All His Life. "I have been in and out of prison since I was a boy," he replied. "I have been hunted and hounded all my life. I am sore on the world. My own life isn't amount to much and nobody's life has meant much to me."

The proceeds of Spencer's crimes have amounted to more than $10,000 in the last year according to his confession.

He has spent the money on women in the Twenty-second street district, where he said he had been a big spender in the cafes.

"I killed Mrs. Rexroat because she was trying to make a sucker out of me,"

Exhausted by Confession. After being questioned for fourteen hours during which he confessed to having committed more than twenty murders Spencer nearly exhausted. He was taken to a cell at the Central Jail and shortly after eight this morning for a few hours sleep. He had been questioned without interruption by Captain Halpin and Assistant State's Attorney Sullivan in regard to the details of his criminal career ever since six o'clock Sunday night. After the long seige he put his hands to his head and said:

"I am too tired to remember any more just now. I have got to have some sleep. Maybe when I am rested I can remember some more. The truth of the matter is that I killed so many I can't remember all of them."

Police Captain Halpin said: "Spencer has confessed to more than twenty murders."

Kills Helen Gould's Maid. "I went to New York six years ago and inspected the art gallery which Miss Helen Gould had installed in the Martha Washington Hotel for women," said Spencer. "There I met Nellie, Miss Gould's maid. We were married three days later. I had told her I was a wealthy traveling salesman."

"One day we took a ride up the Hudson river to West Point and from there went by bus to Fort Montgomery."

"In a secluded spot I struck her with a hammer killing her instantly. I took $500 from her clothing and returned to Chicago."

Murders at Delavan. The prisoner told the police of killing two girls at Lake Delavan, Wis., last October. He said he shot one girl killed with a hammer. The other he killed with a hammer. He said both bodies were thrown in the lake. Spencer said he robbed nearly every room in the leading hotels in Delavan Lake before committing the murders and fleeing.

"One of the two women I killed at Delavan Lake was a school teacher from Ocasalosa, Iowa, and the other was the wife of the auditor of the C. M. & St. Paul railroad at Minneapolis," Spencer said. "I guess they were there on vacation. I got acquainted with them. They both had jewelry and money. I told of an exclusive dance that was supposed to be held and they wanted to go. I took one around on one side of the lake and the other on the other. I killed with a hammer and pushed her body off a high pier."

Ten Women Victims. Two other alleged victims were added to Spencer's long list in his unmitigated confession when he told of having murdered a man and woman at Fox Lake, Ill., in September 1911.

Ten of Spencer's victims were women, two, he said, came from New York. He said he married four times and had killed two of his wives. He always mutilated his victims so that they could not be identified.

"I married Helen Gould's maid in New York," said Spencer. "I took her to Fort Montgomery and killed her in the woods near by. She had about $300 and $500 worth of diamonds."

"Did you have any other women in New York?" asked Captain Halpin. "Yes there was a widow I married. We were coming to Chicago and stopped off at Detroit. We went to Belle Isle or Walker or Windsor. We walked down one of the walks in the park and I shot her. I got $600 and a diamond."

Robbed Astor Cafe. Spencer said he killed three persons with the revolver found in his room. The jewelry he got he sold to Demizon's of the district he frequented and did not go near pawn shops.

Shortly after the murder of Fannie Thompson he said he was arrested for robbery and pleaded guilty to one of eighty-two charges. The last

"job" he did was a few nights ago when he robbed the Astor Cafe, I got a block from the detective bureau. He said he ran down the alley past the detective headquarters."

Chief of Police McWeeney believes that Spencer is telling the truth.

"I believe we have the man who has committed this large number of murders," said the chief. "When Pennell and Devine were murdered I was lieutenant at the detective bureau and worked on the case. I talked to him about it for half an hour and he went over the story in a way that makes me think he is telling the truth."

"It is the most wonderful confession ever made in the United States," asserted Captain Halpin. "We have not been able to trip him up in his statements and many things stamp his confession as the truth. It will take several days to establish for a certainty the truth of his story."

Report From Delavan. Delavan, Wis., Oct. 6.—But one mysterious death has occurred in Delavan during the past summer which could possibly be traced to Henry Spencer, who confessed to several killings near this place. The death of Alva Jones, a wealthy easterner who has spent the past twenty summers here, was surrounded with some mystery. His body was found on the morning of July 24th, on a lonely road, prone on the running board of his automobile. The coroner's jury brought in a verdict of death from heart failure induced by blow from his automobile crank. It is possible that Jones may have been one of Spencer's victims.

WILSON SHOWS PROOF THAT BANKERS AND PEOPLE FAVOR REVISED LEGISLATION AND WANT PASSAGE.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Currency arguments supporting the administration currency bill were presented to the senate banking committee today by Mr. Henry Wilson, director of the bureau of political research.

A tacit understanding has been reached to close the hearings Saturday, October 13.

Shibley attacks American universities in his character of their economic instruction. He declared professors of economics with the exception of one or two colleges dared not take any other view of currency and financial affairs than that favored by the "creditor or plutocratic class."

President Wilson showed callers today a huge stack of telegrams and letters from all over the country which he says indicated a desire for immediate currency legislation and contained approval of the main features of the administration bill as pending in the senate. Many letters are said to be from bankers who did not wish to be quoted. Mr. Wilson reiterated his confidence in signing the bill during the present session of congress.

SOME FACTS FOR THE MANUFACTURER'S EYES

A certain manufacturer spent $100,000 in a "general publicity" campaign to advertise his product. The campaign was not a success.

One of the things he noted was that he got the most inquiries from places where he had no distribution.

He changed his whole program, and instructed his agents to plan a campaign in the newspapers.

Newspapers have been used since then to the exclusion of other mediums and wherever possible they have been used in co-operation with local dealers.

Hardly an ounce of power has been wasted.

No money has been spent in places where there was no distribution.

Sales have doubled and trebled and the profit is much less than that of the previous campaign.

The modern method of national merchandising is co-operative advertising in daily newspapers like The Gazette.

A card or letter to the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York, will bring you any information you desire in regard to the planning of a co-operative newspaper campaign.

Albany, Oct. 6.—Despite the protest of Governor Sulzer's counsel a motion by attorneys for the assembly board of managers to permit them to reopen their case and introduce further testimony was allowed by Presiding Judge Cullen this afternoon. The new testimony was expected to be brief.

A new unreported campaign contribution of $10,000 developed in the impeachment trial of Governor Sulzer this afternoon. J. V. McGlone testified that he handed the governor ten $1,000 bills for his employer, Allen A. Ryan, a son of Thomas F. Ryan, last October.

This was the opening today for the defense in the impeachment trial of Governor Sulzer. According to the agreed Monday program only an afternoon session of the court was held, beginning at 2:15 o'clock and lasting until 6 p. m. Senator Harvey D. Hinman planned to occupy half this time with his opening address, much of which he said would be extemporaneous.

MYSTERY IN MURDER OF OSHKOSH WOMAN

CHICAGO POLICE BAFFLED AT DEATH OF IDA G. LEEGSON STRANGLED BY SILKEN CHORD.

NEEDED MONEY BADLY

Had Answered Advertisement For Domestic to Work Wa Through Art Institute—Milwaukee Normal Graduate.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 6.—Mystery still surrounds the murder of Miss Ida G. Leegson, a struggling art student who was lured by a telephone call to the prairie southwest of the city Saturday and strangled with a silken cord. Following her identification little has been found to indicate a motive for the crime.

Hurried investigation has shown only that she led an exemplary life, had no male callers at any of the places where she is known to have resided, and she is not thought to have possessed any very large amount of money.

Pupil of Lorado Taft. Miss Leegson was a graduate of the university of Chicago, a pupil of Lorado Taft, the sculptor, and student at the Art Institute. Her murder marked the end of a long struggle to make her way as a sculptor. Her studies at the University of Chicago were to fit her for work by which she could earn enough to complete her art education. For several winters she taught school, returning to the city to resume work at the Art Institute.

Only a few hours before she was lured to her death she answered an advertisement for a domestic saying she has to have funds to continue art study and was not too proud to do kitchen work.

A brown leather satchel, thought to have belonged to Miss Ida Leegson, the sculptress, who was murdered here Saturday night or Sunday morning, was found today by C. F. Brochmeyer, a game warden, near the scene of the crime. The bag had been slit from end to end. There remained in the satchel only a pair of stockings and a piece of soap.

A watch, two rings, and a pocket book which she carried were missing.

Teacher at Oshkosh. Oshkosh, Oct. 6.—Miss Ida W. Leegson, the young woman murdered at Chicago, was a teacher in the Oshkosh public schools in 1905 and 1909. She was second assistant to principal Nevins at the Jefferson school on the south side. She was a graduate of the Milwaukee normal school.

It was stated this morning by Superintendent Molver of the local public schools that Miss Leegson was of a retiring disposition, but was considered a successful teacher here. She lived with Mrs. Minnie Kiel, 718 Oregon street.

Superintendent Molver said he does not know where Miss Leegson went from here, but last summer she wrote him a letter from Chicago saying she had been studying art there and wanted him to recommend her as a teacher of art. Her address at that time was 809 Windsor avenue. He wrote the letter as she requested and mailed it to her.

The Oshkosh lady with whom she roomed, said she was of a quiet disposition and always attended strictly to her own affairs and so far as she knew Miss Leegson never had any desire for male companions.

Record at Aurora. Aurora, Ill., Oct. 6.—Miss Ida G. Leegson, who was slain in Chicago on Saturday came to Aurora from Milwaukee in the fall of 1907 to take a position as a teacher of English in the Aurora College. Dr. T. J. Allen, president of this school, gained wide notoriety by going on sixty-day diet of uncooked peanuts to prove their food value, and the test indirectly brought on a dispute with Miss Leegson as to her salary. She came to teach English, he said, but Dr. Allen called upon her to help with his correspondence which accumulated by the bushelful after she began his monodiet efforts. For this labor Miss Leegson sued the doctor and got a judgment of $26.

Dr. Allen's defense was that Miss Leegson stayed in the college dormitory after he had discharged her for flirting with young men students. She denied the accusation, admitting, however, that she smiled when the boys made humorous comments upon the digestive trials of Dr. Allen.

T. D. WILLIAMS DISCUSSES HAR- SHIPS WHICH ARE OVER- COME BY THRIFTY.

HEART, BRAIN, MUSCLE

Are Essential Needs and Qualifica- tions in Making up a Desired Hope—Muscle a Big Factor.

"And the men did the work faith- fully." This was the source of Rev. Williams' sermon last evening at the Methodist church in addressing the representatives of the industrial de- partments of the world's toil. "The noblest cause of men is derived from our earnest and ambitious men over- coming hardships, and smiling in the face of these hardships at the same time."

"Let us stop for one moment and consider what part each one of you are doing to benefit the daily toil, which goes to make up the business of this great universe. Your hands and my hands do everything. With- out hands we could not exist, as far as living and advancement are to be reckoned. The chairs in which you sit are made by hands. Carpets, tables and in fact, everything which makes up this busy world has been under the use of hands in some form or other."

"Every sailboat must have some- where a canvas factory, for the sail- boat could not exist. Every steamer or railway train can be traced back to the foundry and rolling mills, not to speak of the hundreds and thou- sands of miscellaneous proceedings which taken place in advance of the construction of these present day de- mands."

"You will remember that when the temple of Jerusalem was rebuilt, men worked in brass, in gold and in wood, many years before this work could have been attempted. And to rebuild this old temple into something newer and better, required one thing, a desired hope. This desired hope constituted, not only heart, not only brain, but a third element, which is muscle. And muscle is what is needed today, in solving problems as well as heart and brain. These three factors must prevail however, before a desired hope can be attained."

"Again let me refer back to the time of Edward the third, history about eight centuries old, and relate the awful happenings which occurred to man, for refusing to use his mus- cle. He was imprisoned and, fur- ther, if he demanded higher wages, he was branded and allowed to be discharged, thereby placing him with- out any chance of making a living in his native country. After twelve years of age a youth could not change his employment, and he was forced to work from fifteen to seven- teen hours every day, this custom pre- vailing throughout foreign lands, dur- ing these dark days. The people were taxed for religion, and if they refused to go to church, they were discharged, both from their trade or business, and also from the church."

"Sixty years ago, millions of people were held in slavery. About that time there was gradually disappear- ing a heathen notion concerning wo- men. Women were thought of as having unusually long hair and no brains. This idea had passed into history, and now we are facing a new proposition, a new era. Labor is striving, and the time is coming when there will be a new day dawning for the toiler. It is not what we do, but how we do it. Man is a man for all that."

"A fact that is oftentimes unbel- ieved, is that there are stars in ob- scurity which give more light on a clear night, than those stars which can be seen. These brilliant stars, which are visible before the eye, ap- pear to give light, but they fail to give the light which is displayed by un- seen stars. In the same manner, a large part of man's labor and work, is done in this universe each day, but the public fail to recognize it. As the case might be, it is not always the man with a name who is the best man. A traveling man once called upon a customer, and asked his buyer just who certain men were in the road working. The customer responded, pointing to each man, 'There is an old Colonel from the war, and he is a hard worker. That man over there is an old soldier, General, who is faith- ful.' After pointing a long list of army officers, the buyer was forced to state that the private who was but a coming soldier, was the hardest worker in the lot."

"What is it now that all of you do to push this world of advancement each day? At present you are hand- ling the ballot, rearing families, and making good government possible. And back of this all, you are saying to yourselves, 'I am the captain of my faith, the captain of my soul.'"

"As I stated before, there is a new day dawning for the toiler, and I hope that this day is not far away."

CLAIMS CREDIT FOR THE PANAMA CANAL

Charles A. Snider.

That he originated plans for the construction of the Panama canal, and that the United States govern- ment "swiped" them from him with- out compensation or even giving him any credit, is the contention of Charles A. Snider states that he will take no action looking to compensa- tion at this late day, but that he does feel that he is entitled to some cred- it for his part in the great achieve- ment.

POSTPONE FOOTVILLE GAME UNTIL TWELFTH

Results of the baseball game be- tween the Janesville Cardinals and the Footville White Sox, "Rain," which to the disappointment of the Janesville fans and the hundred Foot- ville fans who journeyed here to see their favorites battle with the local nine, at the fair grounds Sunday after- noon, the vain weather man put his foot down and sent gentle showers to flood the driving park diamonds and chase away the fans from the stands. Footville was here ready to play the game and were anxious to settle mat- ters for their defeat by the Cards in the early part of the season. "In fact nearly the whole village was here and the teams and fans were somewhat peaced when the game was called off. It is certain that Footville is after the Cardinals' scalp and true to predic- tions Kavanaugh, leaguer from Rock- ford, was ready to oppose Butlers. It is hoped that if a contest is arranged on the coming Sunday as there is a bitter rivalry between the teams and the Footville confidence will last over until next Sunday. It is a sure bet that the Cardinals will have the bat- tle of the season on their hands for the Footville Sox, besides being out for blood, have a good bunch of ball tossers on their card. It is a ques- tion in the minds of many of the fans as to the calling off the game, but with the threatening weather it is certain, a paying crowd would not at- tend the game and the Cardinals have an open date for the Sox affording the rival factions a good chance to fight it out if the weather man does not in- terfere for the third time next Sun- day.

THROAT Troubles ARE Dangerous

because the swollen glands and inflamed membranes often affect other tissues and impair their healthy action.

Scott's Emulsion stands alone as nature's corrector of throat troubles; its cod liver oil is speedily converted into germ- resisting tissue—the glycerine is curative and healing, while the combined emulsion up- builds the forces to avert the weakening influence which always follows throat troubles.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is best for three important reasons—it relieves the trouble it cures or relieves; it is not charged with alcohol or stupefying drugs.

Shun substitutes and insist on Scott's.

Plenty light plenty hot water — then the shave

Every man has his own idea of what is necessary to secure a good shave, but two elements are the same to all—light and hot water.

Of these two, light is highly important. Look at the picture. You at once realize the advantages of properly arranged light.

No lamp is so adaptable to the shav- ing mirror as the Incandescent Gas Lamp. The pure, white quality of Incandescent Gas Light makes the shave a pleasure.

WORLD SERIES FLAG IS WITHOUT A HOME

COMING SERIES MAKES TWENTY. ONE TIMES TEAMS HAVE BATTLED FOR HONORS.

FLOWN IN TEN STATES

New York and Philadelphia Each Have Championship to Their Credit and Present Series to Decide Rubber.

New York, Oct. 6.—Twenty-one times have the pennant winners of the country fought for the world's championship on the diamond. The world's series will pass its twenty-ninth birthday, however, with the forthcoming contest between the Giants and Athletics. It first came into being in New York in 1884, when Providence, winner of the National League pennant, crossed bats with the victorious Metropolitans—New York's standard bearers—of the old American Association. There were lapses in 1891 and 1892 and a big gap from 1893 to 1902, inclusive, and still another lapse in 1904 when no games were played, but from 1903 to the present, barring these interruptions, the post-season fight for the apex of the baseball world has been an established custom.

The flag has flown in ten states during this short generation. Once it strayed west of the Mississippi river and breezed from a flagstaff in the St. Louis park of the American Association. This was in 1886, twenty-seven years ago. It stayed and never since has crossed the Father of Waters.

Have Close Fights. A flag without a home, it has floated over eleven cities. Providence, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, New York, Louisville, Boston, Cleveland, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Philadelphia—all have sent forth, from time to time, clubs that have fought victorious battles for the trophy. One hundred and thirty-four games have stamped these teams in various years premier baseball players of the world in no uncertain brand. Nearly three-fourths of the games have gone to the winners, although of recent years the contests have been closer than they were in the babyhood of the fight.

Ninety-seven of the 134 games have been won by the teams which captured the flag. Thirty-seven have gone to the losers.

Fifteen times a National League club has won the flag; once the old American Association captured it; five times it has floated over an American League park. In the American League clubs have been its lesser five times out of nine years in which the American and National League clubs have played for it. For the past three years it has breezed over an American League park.

Providence First Winner.

First winners of the world championship were the Providence team, which defeated New York three straight games in 1884. Next year, 1885, the flag went to Chicago. Chicago and St. Louis fought again for the championship in 1887 and this time St. Louis triumphed. Detroit captured the flag in 1887. In 1888 it came to New York for a two-year stay. Louisville got it in 1890. Boston in 1892 and New York again in 1894. In 1895 Cleveland won it in a contest from Baltimore, but the next year the old Baltimore Orioles took it away from Cleveland to keep it for two years. The Boston Americans took it in 1903, first year of the post-season fight between National and American League pennant winners. New York regained it in 1905. The Chicago National and American League fought for it in 1906 and the White Sox won it. In 1907 and 1908 the Detroit Tigers took her place on the championship man in 1908, the Detroit team being defeated for the third consecutive time in the world's series. For two years the world's series came to Philadelphia. The Philadelphia Athletics captured it. Last year it went to the Boston Americans.

Five Teams Repeat.

Six of the eleven cities—Providence, St. Louis, Detroit, Louisville, Cleveland and Pittsburgh—have been world's champions but only seven. Two, Baltimore and Philadelphia, have been champions twice. Baltimore in 1890 and 1892. Philadelphia in 1910 and 1911. Three times the flag has floated over a Boston park, in 1892, 1903 and 1913. New York and Chicago have each had it four times, the former in 1888, 1894, 1907 and 1908, the latter in 1885, 1906, 1907 and 1908.

The table which follows traces the flight of the flag from season to season over the country:

No series 1891, 1893 to 1902, 1904, vs. American Association. 1892 to 1904, vs. American League.

From 1884 to 1890, National League 1897, Temple Cup series.

Fortunes Taken in.

Box office receipts, barometer of interest in the world's series games, have soared to dizzy heights since the Providence and the old American Association clubs battled for the first world championship in 1884. Staged in New York, the premier fight aroused little more than passing interest, was lightly attended and resulted so far from a harvest of receipts that the clubs never even published the figures. Some idea of what they have been is gleaned from the contest the next year between the Chicago club of the National League and St. Louis of the American Association.

Seven games were played in four cities—Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. The fight was hot, Chicago won three, St. Louis three and one game was tied. Such a situation in this year's fight for the pennant would result in tremendous box office receipts. Yet the entire seven games in 1885 yielded but $2,000. Those were the days when a seat in the bleachers cost a quarter and fifty cents provided the best seat in the grandstand. Even this modest admission seems to have kept many enthusiasts away from the games. Not only this, widespread enthusiasm was negligible in the contests. From their humble origin admission prices have grown to the dignity of $25 for a box seating four down to the edge of the diamond in 1913. And a dollar is the least of bills that will admit one to the contest. This buys a seat in the bleachers' stand.

Conditions are changed. The world's series the man who attended a game left his office at the usual hour for the ball game, sauntered leisurely by the wayside to the field and picked out the most advantageous seat he could find. Generally there was plenty of picking. Nowadays he who must go to bed to worry the moment that the day for the series is announced. He knows that he must be early on the spot on the morning of the game—else someone less tardy will crowd him out. The line forms the night before and surges into the field hours before the time set for the game. If he is late the gate is not for him to see.

But the evolution from the days of empty seats to the roaring bleachers and the thundering grandstand packed to capacity has been gradual. In 1887 when St. Louis and Detroit fought fourteen games over the principal part of the United States—playing in nearly a dozen cities—the box receipts climbed up to $42,000. Three thousand dollars a game was considered big money. The next year ten games played between New York and St. Louis brought $24,562 to the box office. In 1894, first year of the Temple Cup series, the average had risen to $4,500 a game. Only four games were played that year, two at Baltimore and two at New York, and the total receipts for the series were $18,000. In 1895 five games were played and the receipts fell to $14,750.

Vast Number Attend.

There was no battle for the world's championship pennant between 1898 and 1902. In 1903 the National League and American League pennant winners began the world's series games as they are now played. One hundred thousand persons—colossal figures ten years ago—saw the eight games and paid more than $50,000 for the privilege. No contest in 1904. In 1905, 91,723 persons saw the games; the price of tickets went up and $68,405 was taken in. The low level came in 1903 when Chicago and Detroit fought for the flag. Sixty-three thousand persons saw the five games. However, they paid $34,976. In 1909, 145,295 persons paid $188,302 to see the games; in 1910, 124,752 persons paid $173,590. In 1911, 131,225 persons saw the games; the price of tickets went up and $173,590 was taken in. The banner year was 1912. More than a quarter of a million persons saw the New York Nationals and the Boston American League club in the eight games and nearly half a million dollars—$480,449—was taken in at the box office.

Players Well Rewarded.

With the rising cost of baseball came a corresponding increase in the prize money of the players. The first game of the world's series, as now played, in 1903 netted the losing players $1,382 each, and the winners $1,316 each. Last year's fight of course was high-water mark in players' prize money. The players on the Boston and New York teams divided between them $147,572, sixty percent to the winning team and forty percent to the losing. Thus the Boston players averaged $5,203 each for playing the eight games; the New Yorkers, $3,472.

LOCALS RECEIVE BAD LACING BY EDGERTON HIGH IN FIRST GAME

Diluted Janesville Team Snowed Under by Superior Playing of Edgerton High.

Prospects of having another championship eleven at the Janesville high school were shattered Saturday afternoon, when the local representatives were swamped by the Edgerton High School at Edgerton by a forty-six to nothing score. Edgerton had the game all their own way throughout the slaughter and in every quarter piled up the score by plowing through the weakened line, skirting the ends for twenty yard gains and using the forward pass with deadly accuracy for making substantial gains. It is only fair to the Janesville team to say that they were in a woefully weakened condition as only one of the regular backfield men was in the game and the line, consisting of the school, Hemming, Dalton, Dearborn, backfield men, Barnes and McVicar, on whom the strength of the team depended, were all disqualified and the subs showed a lack of shiftness and very little knowledge of the game. Roberts and Badger at ends, tried their best, but being new to this important position failed to block their men on the defense, and to follow their opponents on shift and shoe string plays allowing Edgerton to work the forward pass ten times during the contest. The Janesville line failed to make a creditable showing not even making hold for the line plunges and holding their men long enough to give the backfield men a fair start. In the backfield, Atwood was the only man that showed ability to carry the ball and to gain around and through the Edgerton eleven. Only in the tackling department did the locals hold their own. Edgerton men not downing the runners as clean as did Janesville. Hayes at quarterback played an excellent game despite the lacing that was being given him, as he ran the backfield as good as could be expected and at safety stopped every runner that threatened a touchdown on a long run, by daring diving tackles.

The Edgerton team showed wonderful ability and results of careful, and experienced coaching, the plays running off like well oiled machinery and their line pushing the Janesville men all over the field. Edgerton was strong at the tackle positions. Ogden playing a sensational game at blocking his man and numerous times tore through the Janesville line to throw the backfield for a loss. He was called back for line plunges and each time hit the line low and hard, making counting gains. The home backfield was about evenly balanced their halves being very strong for a high school. Williams, the diminutive quarterback, was one of the stars of the game running his team with perfection and took the situations of the game at a glance. On a recovered fumble on the five yard line he wormed his way through the pile

THE LAY OF THE INVESTOR.
Up stairs in a box I've got wonderful stocks that I've bought at odd times through the mail; I've got Mexican rubber and Anatolian blubber, Preferred Ambergis—that's a whale. I've got off stock in wells that the prospectus tells are gushing great guns at each vent, and all that they need is more suckers to bleed to pay seven hundred per cent. I've got Pineapple stock that's as firm as the Rock of Gibraltar, whatever that be; it's as good as the cash and secured by the ash of some volcanic isle in the sea. I've got gold that will run fifty pounds to the ton, and copper that's almost pure stuff; and it's all sure to pay big returns some fine day when the suckers buy holdings enough. I've got Plain and Preferred, I've got Scrambled and Shirred, I've got Sugar and Coffee and Trash, that brings me a line of prospectuses fine, and everything else except cash. I've got old Spanish Grants to West Indian Lands that were deeded one time to Cap. Kidd, and some stock that he bought in this old swampy spot is as good as the day that he did. I've got stocks of all hues—reds, greens, purples and blues, guaranteed nine per cent, and some ten; and just when I swear I'll not buy a new share, then I get "promoted" again. I haven't been missed by an Investor's list, by every new swindle I'm booked; now here's a new line, come on in—water's fine. I feel myself biting—I'm hooked.—Anonymous.

Many people who read this chain-list of gold brick investments will say, "them's my sentiment," for the author expresses, in cheerful vein, the every day experience of bargain chasers. Something for nothing has always been a weakness of humanity, and this weakness has become so pronounced that stringent laws are found necessary to protect the people against themselves. The State of Kansas compels all "fly by night" schemes before they are permitted to take the state seal and is estimated that the people save millions of dollars each year through this sort of protection.

If the government was as careful to encourage legitimate business as it is to discourage fakes, the outlook would be more encouraging. But the desire to regulate every thing in sight has become so pronounced that the average American industry just now is at a loss to know how to proceed without violating some reform law. The era through which the nation is passing is inquisitorial in the extreme. The railroads are at a loss to know which way to turn. Their securities have become by-word in the markets of the old world and their borrowing capacity is exhausted. Not permitted to advance rates, and compelled to meet wage advances and heavy outlays for new safety equipment, they are strictly "up against" a hard proposition. The nation is top heavy on regulation and many of the laws recently enacted, will prove burdensome in the extreme. Wisconsin leads the van on reform. The people have not yet discovered how much it costs, but they are in a fair way to find out during the next twelve months. When the bills are paid there won't be very much left for gold brick investments.

THE NEW TARIFF.
The new tariff is not only in full swing and while time alone can determine results, many changes will be noticed in the very near future. It is estimated that one hundred million dollars worth of goods have accumulated in bonded warehouses during the past few months, waiting for the new tariff schedule. The resources, under the old rate would have been about fifty-eight million dollars, while under the new rate it is reduced some fifteen million dollars. These goods are now released, but it is too early to determine what the effect will be on the market. The largest port of call in New York, but Chicago has twenty-two bonded warehouses, where some ten million dollars worth of goods were held.

The New England states represent the great manufacturing center of the country, and every industry is effected, to greater or less extent. The average reduction under the Underwood bill, is about twenty-five per cent, or more than enough to wipe out the average profit. Just how these industries will be able to adjust themselves to meet new conditions, remains to be seen. They are now placed in competition with the undepaid labor of the old world and reduced American wage scales may be found necessary. Protection to American labor has long been a hobby of the Republican party, but the political revolution of recent years has destroyed many hobbies and culminated in the success of a party whose slogan has always been "tariff for revenue only." The country will now have an opportunity to test the merits of this system, and it is to be hoped that labor will not suffer as a result. If the tariff is a tax it would bother the most of us to tell where it was burdensome, or to recognize the relief promised by tariff reduction. Cheap goods in this country always means cheap labor, and half paid labor means hard times. The price of goods, however low, is of but little interest when we have no money to buy with and this was what happened during the last free trade administration.

While many of the manufacturing industries are hit by the new tariff schedule, and the eastern states are most vitally interested, no section of the country is exempt. Free wheat means competition for the American farmer, and free meat will be felt by the stock raisers, while free sugar is likely to put out of business the beet and cane growers of the South and West. If the demand for all kinds of labor continues to be as good as it has been of late, the wiping out of an industry will not seriously effect the labor market, and this is really the most important feature of the situation. The cost of living is of much less concern than the where-with-all to live.

Even the man who turns in his pay envelope to his wife on Saturday night is not exempt from trouble, as Jeremiah McCarthy of Chicago found to his sorrow. Jerry was short the other night, a dollar and a quarter, and Mrs. McCarthy took him to task. She was satisfied with the dollar that he spent for flowers for a friend's funeral, but the twenty-five cents for his own amusement looked suspicious, and so she disturbed his slumbers all night by demanding an explanation. In the morning Jerry took his hat and left home indefinitely, but few days later was hauled in to court on a charge of abandonment. The family was reunited when Mrs. McCarthy was assured that the twenty-five cents was not squandered on another woman.

Harmony in the ranks of the Democratic law makers at Washington is said to be largely due to a fair show at the pie counter. President Wilson may be a good deal of a pedagogue, and something of a theorist, but he has a receptive mind and the game of politics is very interesting. While civil service is a good thing to conjure with, there are so many ways to beat it that the party in power finds no trouble in becoming harmoniously equipped within a reasonable time. This is as it should be, for civil service usually means poor service because the principle is wrong.

The political muddle in Massachusetts, will doubtless result in the election of a Democratic governor. Congressman Gardner bolts the Republican ticket because not satisfied with the platform, and will run independent. The state is just now a good deal upset over the new tariff schedule, and all sorts of surprises are in order. The earthquake shocks recently felt at Panama caused no apparent damage to the canal and the government breathes easier. Fear has been entertained that the work might be demolished at any time by volcanic disturbances.

The women at Uniontown, Pennsylvania are all baseball fans, and the men are obliged to keep house and take care of the children, while their wives root for the rival clubs now occupying the local field. This ought to be a good opening for a suffragette organization.

The talk of the eastern dailies and of some of those in the west about the easy going farmers makes us rather tired, as, according to these papers, the farmers out that way are just rolling in wealth and have nothing to do but ride around in automobiles. We do not deny that most of the farmers are in comfortable positions but they work from sunrise and longer and they earn every cent they make. The talk about the farmers living in luxury furnishes an excuse for congress to seek their ass as it has already done in the present tariff bill.—Jefferson County Union.

Passing Phenomenon.
The so-called Progressive party will soon exist only as a memory. That it was built up only as a Roosevelt party and not as an organization to be fussed about some great and vital principle is conclusively shown by the results of the Iowa election that have recently been held. It simply proves that a permanent party cannot be built up around any individual, no difference how powerful his personality may be.—Evanston Review.

Running a Paper.
Jim Jones was an editor—that's what he tried to be. He bought himself a printing press and started in to see just what there was in editing, but when he canvassed round some fifteen hundred editors in that same town, he found they all knew more about it than he could hope to know. They told him: "You must run her, Jones, and run her so and so. Be sure to boom the Baptists—they're sure to help you out. And give the good old Methodists a good salvation shout."

Give every man a notice—be sure and let be known.

Then ran the paper in the ground and followed it himself.

Now you want to sell a new one." "Certainly," said the dealer. "I told you that last year. This year is another year and your old car is already nine years behind the times. Troublemaking Fiction.
The talk of the eastern dailies and of some of those in the west about the easy going farmers makes us rather tired, as, according to these papers, the farmers out that way are just rolling in wealth and have nothing to do but ride around in automobiles. We do not deny that most of the farmers are in comfortable positions but they work from sunrise and longer and they earn every cent they make. The talk about the farmers living in luxury furnishes an excuse for congress to seek their ass as it has already done in the present tariff bill.—Jefferson County Union.

FURS
Advancing In Price:
Fur bearing animals live in the wilderness of the world. As civilization moves its outposts these animals are exterminated. Natural conditions govern the fur market and every season sees an advance in price. No dealer can approximate the future price of furs. Every dealer knows that the price tendency is upward. Big Store furs for the season 1913-14 are now ready. The prices are as low as is consistent with the prices at which the skins were bought months ago. By the time the fur wearing season has come around skins will have materially advanced in price and the manufactured article will advance accordingly. If you want the best fur or fur-lined coats, muffs or neckwear that money can buy anywhere, buy Big Store furs now. They will be kept subject to your orders for future delivery and you will have the advantage of making your selection from a complete stock at a great saving.

SCHOOL BOARD MAY ASK CITY TO TAKE OVER PLAYGROUNDS

Matter of Petitioning Council for Appropriation for Next Year to Be Considered Tonight.

Definite action on the part of the city school commission on the playground proposition will be taken at the regular monthly meeting which will be held at the high school building tonight. It is probable that the question will be squarely presented whether the board shall petition the city council for an appropriation to cover the entire expense of conducting municipal playgrounds.

H. S. Lovejoy, one of the directors of the Playground Association, has been securing data in regard to the success of the playgrounds as conducted the past season with funds raised from various sources, including donations from citizens. He plans to present the entire matter thoroughly at the meeting this evening.

According to Mr. Lovejoy the majority of the larger donations were given this year on the supposition that if the success of the enterprise was demonstrated the city would take over the playgrounds. The directors of the association do not feel that they can consistently ask for private subscriptions another year as they are confident that the success of the work has been proved without question.

Several members of the school board are known to be in favor of the playgrounds being operated as a part of the school system and will undoubtedly vote in favor of the proposition. It is possible that the council will be kindly disposed to the proposition if they receive the school board's recommendation.

Between $500 and $800 will be required to conduct the work next year according to the estimate made by Mr. Lovejoy. He believes that another playground should be equipped in the first ward, in order to serve every part of the city equally and that this is done several hundred dollars would be needed for apparatus.

STORY OF KIDNAPPING PROVED UNFOUNDED

Supposed White Girl Held by Gypsies Discovered to Be One of Their Own Race and Family.

What earlier promised to develop into the recovery of a white girl from a band of gypsies who had kidnapped her, faded away into a hoax late this morning when Chief of Police Ransom and Patrolman Chapman on visiting the caravan of the gypsies near Willowdale to the west of the city, found that the supposed white girl was a gypsy and one of a large brood of the same race. She was of lighter complexion than the rest of the family, but she had the same jet black hair.

Information that a white child had been seen with a band of Indians or gypsies on the footbridge road yesterday afternoon was telephoned to the police station at 8:20 o'clock this morning by a Mrs. Shiels. The boys who had seen the girl, she said, were William Dornier, Frank Schol, and Orin Cook. As they approached the wagon of the vagabonds which were near a bridge about 7 1/2 miles west of this city, a girl which they declared was white, seven or eight years old, and with black hair, came toward them. As soon as her movement was noticed, one of the men in the party seized her, knocked her down, and spoke to her in some language they were strange to the boys. About three o'clock they hitched up the horses to the wagons and started north from Hanover towards Janesville. There were three wagons in the caravan and some extra horses and the members of the party claim they were on their way to North Dakota. Patrolman Chapman verified the story of Mrs. Shiels by telephoning Dornier and Schol, but was unable to get into communication with Cook.

CAN COMPLETE BRIDGE IN CONTRACT PERIOD

Prospects Are for Completion Before That Time—Ready to Pour Concrete into Pier Above Water.

That the new Milwaukee street bridge will be completed by December 1, the time called for by the terms of the contract, seems assured from the stage of construction at present, and prospects being good for its completion some time before that date. The west abutment is completed and forms placed for the first arch extending out from it. Footings for the first pier are in and the piling will be cut off as soon as the water is pumped out of the cofferdam that surrounds it. The footings for the east pier are also ready, the piling sawed off and forms placed for the "neat" pier, that portion extending from the water to the spring line of the arch. A beginning at pouring concrete into it will probably be made late today.

The centre pier and the east abutment of the bridge are yet to be constructed. One east derrick will be used to build the abutment at the west derrick the center pier. By the latter part of the week it is hoped to have the west pier completed so that concrete can be poured in the forms for the westernmost arch.

W. C. Kiernan, the Whitewater contractor who is building the bridge over Spring Brook on South Main street has placed the concrete footings for the north abutment and is driving piers for the other. Because of the gravel and sand foundation some difficulty is being experienced in pile driving. This bridge is under contract to be completed at the same time as the Milwaukee street bridge.

Commercial Club Directors Consider Various Propositions at Meeting Today.

President James S. Pfeiffer presided at the meeting of the directors of the Commercial club at the Grand Hotel this noon. No business of importance came before the meeting. The reports of the committee on factory propositions were read. One Milwaukee brush concern which did not appeal strongly to the club, and another machine institution which may develop something of rare merit for the city later on. The spirit of the club is to secure an industry which will be a benefit to the city, and the directors have confidence that such an institution will be located in the future.

Secretary F. E. Lane was instructed to attend the state meeting of commercial secretaries which is to be held in Milwaukee at a later date.

BELOIT MURDERER DETAINED AT JAIL TO AWAIT HEARING

Joseph Peruccio Brought There by Sheriff Early This Afternoon—Hearing October 15.

Joseph Peruccio of Beloit, who confesses to the slaying of Andro Polaczak, a fellow countryman, in that city Saturday night, was brought to the county jail by Sheriff C. S. Whipple, on the interurban car arriving shortly before two o'clock this afternoon and will be detained there until October 15, to which date his case has been set for hearing by Judge Clark in the municipal court at Beloit at ten o'clock this morning. He has not yet decided what answer he will make to the complaint against him but maintains that the killing was justifiable. To a reporter who questioned him this afternoon he said then, when he came to the house where the murder took place he ordered out men in charge who were making a disturbance. As he had no interest in the place he claimed he had a right to do so. The men refused. One of them attacked him with a bottle and another began to choke the woman in the room. To defend her he drew his gun, shot the man who assailed him and also the one attacking the woman.

Jealousy over women caused the murder of Andro Polaczak and the wounding of "Donna" Dragana, at the hands of Joseph Peruccio, Saturday night, according to the Beloit police, and brought to light a system of white slavery thought to be the biggest ever unearthed in this section.

The parties in the affair are all Venetians. Patrolman Jorgensen found the dead body of Polaczak on the walk in front of Sam Samone's store at the foot of St. Paul avenue, near the Beloit shoe factory, and near him was the bleeding form of Dragana. The investigation that followed led to the arrest of Peruccio, a bartender who, after being locked up, confessed to the killing, saying he had shot the two men in self defense and hoped that Dragana would die. Peruccio had gone to his room in another part of the city and gone to bed.

The police evidence shows that persons have been bringing Italian women into the city for immoral purposes. Many arrests have been made in connection with the case.

Bath Tubs

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

A BATH tub is a large receptacle, capable of holding fifty gallons of water, a human being and a cake of soap. Its mission is to keep one-third of humanity clean, and the other one-third humble.

The bath tub is the chief landmark of civilization. Wherever it can be found in profusion and is not used for a coal bin or garbage receptacle, there civilization reigns, and man has a strange hold on the culture of the day. A land may be full of wondrous marble palaces and temples that make the Congressional library look like an overgrown dog house, but if it has no bath tubs it is a failure and missionaries flock to it in great numbers.

In England the bathtub is the millstone of the civilized man. He does not wear it around his neck, but he folds it up and lugs it painfully around the world in his baggage. The bath tub has made great strides in England, but is still a curiosity in many hotels. If we peruse English literature the chief thing which we learn is the fact that the upper class Englishman cannot live without his morning bath. But if we peruse England from a plumbing standpoint we also discover that he apparently does the bathing for the entire island.

In America the bath tub has made great strides, and is now more common than the piano and the mail order catalogue. The bath tub is the first rung in the ladder by which the American rises to prosperity. After having acquired a bath room he buys a piano on the installment plan. Then he joins a club and swarms gallantly upward into the automobile class. The bath tubs of America keep the nation clean at a very small expense. For two cents a day an American can soak himself for half an hour each morning and play the fascinating game known as chasing the soap. However, if he goes to the American hotel he discovers that baths are much higher in price. It costs him a dollar extra to rent a room with bath, and many travelers have been so irritated by this that they have gone out and stood in the dusty automobile road for an hour each afternoon in order to get their money's worth when they return to the hotel.

It is now the ambition of the American citizen to own as many bath tubs as possible and the man who has just built a house in which there are 57 bath tubs for the use of himself, wife and little son is gazed upon with awe and admiration on all sides.

CROXONE SAVES ELDERLY PEOPLE FROM KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Sleep Disturbing Bladder Weaknesses, Backache, Stiff Joints, Rheumatic Pains Disappear After Few Doses are Taken.

While people along in years are naturally more subject to weak kidneys, they can easily avoid the tortures of backache and rheumatism, and be saved the annoyance of getting up at night with disagreeable bladder disorders.

Croxone relieves these conditions by promptly reaching the cause and making the kidneys filter the blood and sift out the poisonous acids and waste matter that cause these troubles. It soaks right in and cleans out the stopped up, inactive kidneys, dissolves and drives out the uric acid and other poisonous impurities that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause rheumatism. It neutralizes the urine so it no longer irritates the bladder, overcomes unnecessary breaking of sleep and helps the kidneys and bladder regain health and strength.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what else you have used. It is practically impossible to take Croxone without results. It starts to work the minute you take it—the first time you use it. An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails in a single case.

Miss Blanchard of Madison, spent Sunday at the Blanchard.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat
BY RUTH CAMERON

PSYCHOLOGICAL.

THE dictionary defines sex as a physical difference between man and woman. But sex is vastly more than that. It is really a wide, psychological difference, as difficult to define as it is easy to feel. The peculiar way in which we classify certain things as feminine and others as masculine is an interesting expression of the psychological side of sex.

For instance, almost every one speaks of a cat as she and a dog as he, without regard to the actual sex of the animal in question. You know yourself, that it is quite impossible to see the clumsy, irresponsible, lovable gambols of a puppy and think of him in anything but terms of masculinity (you notice I wrote "him"). I did that quite unconsciously. On the other hand, the cuddly softness, the domesticity, the grace and quickness, in fact the whole temperament and quality of a cat is quite as distinctly feminine.

That we should speak of a cow as she has of course a physical foundation. But why should a horse always be he? And yet almost everyone except a horse fancier or a horse owner naturally refers to a horse in the masculine.

Our bestial of sex upon vegetable and mineral life and upon inanimate objects is an even more striking proof of the psychological character of sex. Theoretically, all such things should be referred to as "it." Actually we express our sense of their masculinity or femininity by the use of he or she. Take the sun and moon, for instance. The sun is "he" and the moon is "she." Sometimes to be sure we do call either of them "it," but it would be quite impossible to call the sun she and the moon he, would it not?

That the ancient peoples felt this to their dedications show. In all mythologies the sun was a god and a goddess. One feels just why this is but it is rather difficult to define. I suppose it is because the sun is larger, fiercer and more masterful, while the moon is his gentler and paler satellite.

Why flowers should always be "she" is obvious. Imagine saying "The roses lips are warm and red, and burning with desire, his heart and soul are all aflame," etc. But why all kinds of ships should be invariably spoken of in the feminine gender rather puzzles me. The small yacht, to be sure, with her lissome lines, her slim whiteness, and her flowing sail, is like a beautiful woman; but there is nothing particularly feminine about the huge liners that push, so forceful and unaltered, across the wide ocean.

Mountains, I believe, are generally thought of as he, at least my own sense of them is masculine and their names are usually masculine. But I do not think the ocean has been classified as either masculine or feminine. Is it, I wonder, because in its vastness, its mystery, and its changing moods it is neither masculine nor feminine, but both and something more?

THANKS to the human heart by which we live, which we love, which we fear, to the meanness of the flower that blooms in the garden, to the deep of tears.

PICKLING TIME.

A few varieties of pickles are always a necessity upon the cellar shelf, to be ready for use when occasion demands.

Sweet Tomato Pickle.—These, if carefully prepared, will keep until early summer of the following year. Wash and slice small sized green tomatoes to fill a two-gallon jar, with a dozen medium-sized onions also sliced. Let stand over night covered well with salt. In the morning drain and add to a pickle made of two pounds of brown sugar, a pint of vinegar, a handful each of cloves, cinnamon and allspice tied in bags; cook until tender, and when cool stir in a half cup of grated horseradish. Cover with a plate and keep in a cool, dark place.

Pickled Nasturtiums.—The pungent flavor of the nasturtium seed is liked by many. To prepare them, soak in weak vinegar twenty-four hours, then drain. Heat the vinegar with mixed spices, a tablespoonful of sugar and a few pieces of ginger root; add salt, pack the seeds in jars and pour over the vinegar and seal.

Spiced Pears.—Make a sirup of a quart of sugar and a cup of vinegar, with cloves and cinnamon and a few pieces of ginger. Peel the pears and cook a few at a time, so that they keep their shape. Put into jars and cover with the sirup.

Green Cucumber Pickles.—Fill quart jars with small green cucumbers washed and fresh from the vines; add a tablespoonful of salt, a teaspoon of sugar, and a bag of spices, if liked. Fill the jar with cold vinegar and seal. Put in a cold place, and they will keep indefinitely. The vinegar should not be so strongly acid that it eats the pickle. Vinegar may be reduced by adding a small amount of water to it, and it will be just as satisfactory and much more wholesome for the stomach.

Things Worth Knowing.
You remove tea stains from a table cloth by immersing it in a strong solution of sugar for a few minutes and then rinsing it in soft water.

You can remove tea or coffee stains of long standing by rubbing the cloth with glycerine, after washing once; a second washing leaves the linen as clean as before.

Clean matting by washing thoroughly in a solution consisting of one gallon of water with a small bag of bran boiled in it, but be careful to dry thoroughly.

Sponges should be scolded out thoroughly every little while, as they are great germ collectors.

THE TABLE.
Lady Fingers—Three eggs, half cup of sugar, grated rind of half a lemon, five-eighths of a cup of flour. Beat yolks thick, and the whites dry; add lemon rind to yolks, and beat in the sugar gradually. Fold in half the flour, then the other half, and the whites. Shape on a buttered baking sheet, in narrow strips, about one inch wide and four or five inches long dredge with sugar. Bake about ten minutes.

Chocolate Fudge.—Boil together one cup of sugar, one cup grated chocolate, one-half cup milk, one tablespoonful of butter. Cook, stirring often, until a little hardens in a cup of cold water. Take from the fire, flavor with vanilla to taste, turn into a buttered pan and mark into squares with a buttered knife as it cools.

Angel Cake.—Whites of nine large eggs beaten stiff, one and one-fourth cupfuls of sifted sugar, one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of cream tartar, one pinch of salt, and one teaspoonful of vanilla. After sifting flour four or five minutes, measure one cupful add salt to eggs, beat about half, add cream of tartar and vanilla, and beat very stiff; stir in sugar, and then flour very lightly; bake in moderate oven for forty or fifty minutes. You may color some of the batter and bake in layers or sheets and cut in squares in a plate together.

Mayonnaise of Eggs.—Shell five hard-cooked eggs and cut each in halves lengthways; remove the yolks and mix with one tablespoonful of mayonnaise sauce, add salt and pepper to taste and refill the halves of the eggs. Place them on a wire sieve and coat them with mayonnaise previously mixed with two tablespoonfuls of liquid aspic jelly. When the eggs are well coated and set arrange them on a bed of seasoned lettuce or endive on a dish. Decorate the top of each egg with chopped parsley, diced pickled walnuts and serve.

Spiced Grapes.—Stem, wash and pulp grapes and stew the pulp gently until it can be rubbed through a fine colander which will hold the seeds. Measure the pulp. For every five pints of this and the juice allow a pint of cider vinegar, four pounds of brown sugar, three tablespoonfuls of ground cinnamon and two or three ground cloves. Put these with the grape pulp and juice, turn into a preserving kettle and stew slowly until very thick. Keep in jelly glasses or jars with closely fitted tops.

Bird's Nest.—Put into a buttered baking dish six or seven pared and cored apples. Mix to a smooth paste with cold milk, five tablespoonfuls of flour and add the yolks of three eggs well beaten. Then add one teaspoonful of salt and the whites of the eggs well beaten. Then more milk, using one pint in all. Pour this mixture over the apples and bake one hour in a moderate oven. Serve with any good sauce.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People
By FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

Has it ever occurred to you that for the same amount of money a cosy, attractive kitchen instead of an unattractive one can be had? As the kitchen is a woman's workshop and as of necessity the most of us spend considerable time there we should plan to have it as pleasant as possible for surroundings do make a difference.

The walls of a kitchen may be painted yellow or light blue; wash paint that is sanitary and very easily cleaned; the woodwork can be white or a darker shade of yellow, as either cleans with little time and effort. The shelves covered with white enamel and with enough hooks at the sides to hang spoons, dippers or measures.

Put a pine shelf under one of the windows, paint it to match the rest of the room. Why this shelf? For a book or paper; you've no idea 'til you start having a book or paper on this shelf—this kitchen bookcase—all the reading you can do in a day and not go out one bit back with your work.

Now some there may be that will not be in favor of this plan. "Work first, then recreation" is their motto. This talk is to the class of women (their number is legion) who are forced to work the most of the day; whose time is taken up with the raising of children, the running of a home and the many, many duties that these tasks entail.

If you can induce John to fit you up a window-box for parsley, which is very luxuriant, and for a few flowers that will be very good investments it will be time well spent. This window-box can be finished for forty cents, if you put it on the ledge, if you want it on brackets it will cost ten cents more. The lumber—just one board can be purchased at any of the lumber dealers for a little less than forty cents and when the box is up and in use—well, forty cents couldn't purchase a hen.

A two quart can of paint can be purchased for ninety cents, and one quart for the woodwork costs fifty cents. This with the forty cents for the box still leaves you some of two dollars, to spend on curtains if you so desire. Curtains that you can buy

DOMESTIC SCIENCE DEPARTMENT
CONDUCTED BY MRS. ALICE GIBBELL KIRKDINING SERVICE EFFICIENCY
PLEASES EYE; AIDS HEALTH

The attractiveness of our meals depends very largely upon the way the food is prepared, placed in the dishes and then finally in the arrangement upon the table.

These are days of pure foods and splendid opportunities for learning methods of good and wholesome cooking. But that is not all; the culmination, the pleasure, the real value to be derived from the time and effort spent in this preparation is when this food is arranged on the table conveniently, in order and some art displayed. All this means efficiency of service in serving the meal and the happiness and ease of the family.

Comfort For Family.
We are not going to talk about guests now. There are only casual diners at our table, but our family is there three times a day, every day, 365 days in a year, and it is their comfort and efficiency in serving this meal in which we are interested. I can say many readers can recall the table which is supposed to be laid or "set" and some member of the family jumping up from the table every few minutes to get something which has been forgotten. Not enough careful efficiency and planning the meal to know just what was necessary to place on the table, is probably the reason. I once asked the head of a house who objected most seriously to his wife leaving the table for anything when once seated. She told me that it made her very careful in remembering to have all the necessary silver and china on the table or within easy reach. A young brother who lived with them, always removed the regular dinner course and brought in the dessert.

As a rule I never like to say "don't" but rather "do," out here I will say DON'T drop the knives, forks and spoons down in a heap at the other side of the plate, but always lay them straight.

Don't Do It.
Since writing these dining room articles I have had several ask me if I knew how many families, for the middle meal in particular, never sit down at a well appointed table to eat. In homes where there is refinement in every thing, else in apparently and yet children young and old come in with a rush and get what they have to eat standing or any way they can. I must confess I could hardly believe this possible, but since then have been assured by many it is too true.

Again I'll say don't do it! If it is only-milk and milk eat it under the best possible conditions and with the least hurry. The cloth may be coarse, the dishes and silver inexpensive, but if they are clean, the cloth neatly spread, this simple meal will be enjoyed as much as a more expensive one. The effect of food reaches farther than the eye, pleasant impressions act upon the digestive organs and the health of our children, in particular, may rest entirely upon the meals cooked and served for the best efficiency in the dining room, and the best efficiency of growing children and the entire family as well.

"Horse" Australians.
Englishmen are supposed to be the most "horsey" people in the world, but they are far behind many other countries in regard to the number of horses per head of population. In this respect Australia leads the British empire, there being 45 horses to every 100 people.

ENGINE TURNS OVER; CREW ESCAPES HARM

Switch engine number 167, of the Northwestern railroad, was derailed together with the tender and two box cars, Saturday evening at the belt line south of the Caloric fireless cooker factory.

The enginemen, Louis Gestland and Frank Dooley, saw the danger in time and jumped before the locomotive turned over. The locomotive tender and two cars all turned over on their side and the trucks on the engine and tender were ripped loose and caught ten feet back of the tender. The wrecking crew with the Janesville derrick at the South Janesville yards worked Saturday night and had the cars righted and track repaired by Sunday afternoon.

FALLS DOWN SHAFT AT MYER'S HOTEL

M. A. Stewart, Traveling Salesman,
Injured in Fall of Ten Feet
Down Elevator Shaft.

M. A. Stewart, salesman for the Vaughn Manufacturing company residing at 214 South Main street, received severe injuries shortly before twelve o'clock Sunday morning from a fall down the elevator shaft at the Myers Hotel.

According to Stewart, he was at the Myers house to see two other traveling men of the company and was about to go up stairs accompanied by the bell boy. On going near the elevator shaft the bell boy opened the door and stepped to one side and Stewart in the darkness failed to notice that the elevator was on the floor above, stepped off. It is estimated that it is ten feet to the bottom and as Stewart is a heavy man, he fell with considerable force. He saved himself from more serious injuries, checking his fall by holding his hands out striking the sides of the shaft. Both legs were badly bruised, the knee cap on his right leg being misplaced and an X-ray examination may show a fractured bone.

Stewart was taken to a room in the hotel, medical attention given and later removed to his home. It is understood that suit will be brought against the hotel management for damages.

Wanted!

Perfectly healthy men and women who will voluntarily submit to an experiment which may lead to temporary or permanent impairment of health, or possible death.

This experiment to be conducted with the coffee drug, "caffeine."

Would You Apply for the Job?

Thousands are trying the experiment every day in spite of the fact that physicians and government experts have proven:

That the average cup of coffee contains about 2½ grs. of caffeine;

That caffeine is attributed to be one of the principal causes of headache, biliousness, heart disease, indigestion and kidney, liver and bowel trouble;

That caffeine in doses as small as that contained in two average cups of coffee has killed rabbits, guinea pigs and other animals at the laboratories of the Gov't. in Washington and elsewhere.

To be sure a guinea pig or a rabbit may weigh but a pound or two, while the average human may weigh 100 times as much.

A few cups of coffee or a single cup (according to the resistance of the individual) will not kill, but the poison is there and can be added to day by day.

That's why so many coffee drinkers suffer from headache, dizziness, indigestion and other symptoms referable to the poison effect on heart, liver, nerves, kidneys and stomach.

If you know coffee has no bad effect in your particular case and you like it, why, bless your heart, stick to it, but if coffee drinking leaves its tell-tale mark by some symptoms of physical discomfort or peace of mind, it's a good idea to stop and use

POSTUM

This pure food-beverage, made of prime wheat and the juice of southern sugar-cane, makes a rich, seal-brown blend turning to golden-brown when cream is added, which tastes much like real-Oriental Java but is absolutely free from the coffee drug, "caffeine."

Postum comes in two forms. One, called Regular Postum, must be boiled full 15 minutes.

The other, Instant Postum, is in powder form and a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water makes the beverage instantly. Grocers keep both kinds.

DON'T TRUST CALOMEL

THOUSANDS EXPERIENCE BAD AFTER EFFECTS FROM THIS DANGEROUS DRUG.

A Safe Vegetable Substitute is Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets for the Liver.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Ohio, has discovered a laxative and liver tonic in a combination of vegetable materials mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like calomel, except that there are none of the bad after effects.

Dr. Edwards has long been a foe of calomel, though he recognized its value along with its dangers.

His distrust of the uncertain drug eventually started him, years ago, towards experiments with the view of discovering a substitute, and he has been for several years in possession of the long sought-for combination, which is in the shape of a little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablet.

The results of 17 years' experience and practice are embodied in these marvelous little tablets.

They are called Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. And their effect on the liver has been the means of relief to many of Dr. Edwards' regular patients as well as to thousands of others who have suffered and were afraid of calomel.

There is no necessity, when you take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, by following them up with nasty, sickening griping salts, or castor oil, or you do after taking calomel. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

"Now," I said, when we were out of earshot, "spit it out. I've been expecting it."

"Listen, Minnie," he answered. "Something's got to be done, and done soon. If you want the plain truth, Miss—er—Summers and I used to be friends—and well, she's suing me for breach of promise. Now for heaven's sake, Minnie, don't make a fuss—"

But my knees wouldn't hold me. I dropped down in a snow-drift and covered my face.

CHAPTER VI.

I dragged myself back to the springhouse and dropped in front of the fire. What with worry and no sleep and now this new complication I was dead as yesterday's newspaper. I sat there on the floor with my hands around my knees, thinking what to do next.

When I opened my eyes Mr. Pierce was sitting on the other side of the chimney and staring at the fire. He had a pipe between his teeth, but he wasn't smoking, and he had something of the same look about his mouth he'd had the first day I saw him.

"Well?" he said, when he saw I was awake.

That minute I made up my mind not to tell him all the facts. He might think the situation was too much for him and leave, or he might decide he ought to tell Miss Summers where Dick was. There was no love lost between him and Mr. Carter.

"I'm just tired and cranky," I said. "So—Miss Summers settled yet?"

"He nodded, as if he wasn't thinking of Miss Summers."

"What did you tell her?"

"Haven't seen her," he said. "Sent her a note that I was understudying a man named Carter and to mind to pick up her cues."

"It's a common enough name," I said, but he had lighted his pipe again and had dropped forward, one elbow on his knee, his hand holding the bowl of his pipe, and staring into the fire.

He looked up when I closed and jocked the pantry door.

I put that away in my mind to speak about. It was only by nailing the windows shut and putting strips of cotton batting around the cracks that we'd ever been able to keep people there in winter. I had my first misgiving then. Heaven knows I didn't realize what it was going to be.

CHAPTER VI.

I dragged myself back to the springhouse and dropped in front of the fire. What with worry and no sleep and now this new complication I was dead as yesterday's newspaper. I sat there on the floor with my hands around my knees, thinking what to do next.

When I opened my eyes Mr. Pierce was sitting on the other side of the chimney and staring at the fire. He had a pipe between his teeth, but he wasn't smoking, and he had something of the same look about his mouth he'd had the first day I saw him.

"Well?" he said, when he saw I was awake.

That minute I made up my mind not to tell him all the facts. He might think the situation was too much for him and leave, or he might decide he ought to tell Miss Summers where Dick was. There was no love lost between him and Mr. Carter.

"I'm just tired and cranky," I said. "So—Miss Summers settled yet?"

"He nodded, as if he wasn't thinking of Miss Summers."

"What did you tell her?"

"Haven't seen her," he said. "Sent her a note that I was understudying a man named Carter and to mind to pick up her cues."

"It's a common enough name," I said, but he had lighted his pipe again and had dropped forward, one elbow on his knee, his hand holding the bowl of his pipe, and staring into the fire.

He looked up when I closed and jocked the pantry door.

I've known a lord or two, but that's different. You call them anything you like and lend them money."

"I dare say you can with Oskar, too," Mrs. Dicky put the note down and sighed. "Well, he's coming. Pat says dad won't go back to town until he's had 21 baths, and he's only had eleven and she's got to stay with him. And you needn't worry about what to call Oskar. He's not to know we're here."

I was worried on my way back to the springhouse—not that the prince would make much difference, as far as I could see things being about as bad as they could be. But some of the people were talking of leaving, and since we had to have a prince it seemed a pity he wasn't coming with all his retinue and titles. It would have been a good ten thousand dollars' worth of advertising for the place, and goodness knows we needed it.

When I got back to the springhouse Miss Patty and Mr. Pierce were still there. "Of course it isn't my affair," he was saying. "You are perfectly—"

Then I opened the door and he stopped. I went on into the pantry to take off my overshoes, and as I closed the door he was continuing. "I didn't mean to say what I have. I meant to explain about the other night—I had a right to do that. But you forced the issue."

"I was compelled to tell you he was coming," she said angrily. "I felt I should."

"What would you have had me do?" she asked.

"Take those two children to your father. What if there was a row? Why should there be such a lot made of it, anyhow? They're young, but they'll get older. It isn't a crime for two people to—er—love each other, is it? And if you think a scandal or two in your family—granting your father would make a scandal—is going to put another patch on the ragged reputation of the royal family of—"

"How dare you!" she cried furiously. "How dare you!"

I heard her cross the room and fling the door open and a second later it slammed. When I came out of the pantry Mr. Pierce was sitting in his old position, elbow on knee, holding his pipe and staring at the bowl.

I had my hands full the next day. We'd had another snowstorm during the night and the trains were blocked again. About ten o'clock we got a telegram from the new doctor we'd been expecting, that he'd fallen on the ice on his way to the train and broken his arm, and at eleven a delegation from the guests waited on Mr. Pierce and told him they'd have to have a house physician at once.

"We're doing the best we can," Mr. Pierce explained. "We—we expect a doctor today."

"When?" from Mr. Jennings, who had come on a cane and was watching Mr. Pierce like a hawk.

"This afternoon, probably. As there is no one here very ill—"

But at that very almost fell on him and tore him to pieces. I had to step in front of him myself and say we'd have somebody there by two o'clock if we had to rob a hospital to get him.

Well, as if I didn't have my hands full with getting meals to the shelter-house, and trying to find a house doctor, and wondering how long it would be before "Julia" came face to face with Dick Carter somewhere or other, and trying to keep one eye on Thornburn while I kept Mr. Pierce straight with the other—that day, during luncheon, Mike the bath man came out to the springhouse and made a howl about his wages. He'd been looking surly for two days.

"What about your wages?" I snapped. "Aren't you getting what you're always had?"

"No tips!" he said sulkily. "Only a few taking baths—only one daily, and that's that man Jennings. There's no use talking, Miss Minnie, I've got to have a double percentage on that man or you'll have to muzzle him. He—he's dangerous."

"If I give you the double percentage, will you stay?"

"I don't know but that I'd rather have the muzzle, Miss Minnie," he answered slowly, "but—I'll stay. It won't be for long."

Which left me thinking. I'd seen Thornburn talking to Mike more than once lately, and he'd been going around with an air of assurance that didn't make me any too cheerful.

At four o'clock Mr. Sam came in, and he had Mr. Thornburn tight by the arm.

"My dear old chap," he was saying. "It would be as much as your life's worth. That ground is full of holes and just now covered with snow—"

He caught my eye, and wiped his forehead.

"Heaven help us!" he said, coming over to the spring, "I found him making for the shelter-house, armed with a foot rule!" Somebody's got to take him in hand—I tell you, the man's a menace!"

"What about the doctor?" I asked, reaching up his glass.

"Be here tonight," he answered, "on the—"

But at that minute a boy brought a telegram down and handed it to him. The new doctor was laid up with influenza!

We eat there after the others had gone, and Mr. Sam said he was for giving up the fight, only to come out now with the truth would mean such a lot of explaining and a good many people would likely find it funny. Mr. Pierce came in later and we gave him the telegram to read. He glanced at it and handed it back.

"Let's of starving M. D.'s would jump at the chance," he said, "but if it's as urgent as all this we can't wait to hunt. I'll tell you, Van Aistyne, there's a chap down in the village—he was the character man with the Sweet Peas company—and he's stranded there. I saw him this morning. He's washing dishes in the depot restaurant for his meals. We used to call him Doc, and I've a hazy idea that he's a graduate M. D.—name's Barnes."

"Great!" cried Van Aistyne. "Let's have Barnes. You get him, will you, Pierce?"

Mr. Pierce promised and they started out together. At the door Mr. Sam turned.

"Oh, by the way, Minnie," he called "better give one of your chairs and put a red cushion on it. The prince has arrived."

Well, I thought it all out that afternoon as I washed the glasses, and it was terrible. I had two people in the shelter-house to feed and look after like babies, with Tillie getting more curious every day about the basket she brought, and not to be held much longer; and I had a man running the sanatorium and running it to the devil as fast as it could go. Then I had a prince I couldn't get, and Thornburn stirring up mischief, and the servants threatening to strike, and no house doctor—

Dinner Stories

When something goes wrong on the stage the clever and experienced actor can always save the situation by taking an old hand worked in one time like that. "Die, villain!" the hero said, and shot off his revolver at the villain's head. But the gun didn't go off. Six times the hero pulled the trigger and not a single explosion took place. The audience was getting hysterical, when the victim struck an attitude and said:

"The papers!"

"The papers?"

"Your pistol has missed fire, Sir Reginald, but what difference does it make? The thought that I was to be shot has frightened me to death!" And he rolled over and died.

"Our junior is a big, hulking bully, an ex-prize fighter, and has beaten up several of his tenants on the slightest provocation," said the small, wiry man, "but I had a complaint to make and I made it. Furthermore, I told him just what I thought of him."

"And you weren't afraid?" gasped his incredulous friend. "Didn't he hit you?"

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns, fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper, and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

OLIVE OIL.

Under the Pure Food Law all oil made from olives is pure olive oil, yet there is as much difference in olive oil as there is in butter.

Chaste olive oil is made from olives that through cause of decay, insects or storms fall to the ground. Sound, healthy olives stay on the trees until ripe, like our apples. They are then gathered, the oil pressed without heat. This is virgin olive oil. The second pressing is obtained with steam and hot water, which is known as fine table oil. The rich flavor and medicinal properties are found only in the virgin oil which is of a greenish-yellow color. It is very nutritious. Used in nervous diseases is a mild laxative; has a great reputation as a remedy for stones in the bladder, and is a skin food and complexion beautifier through its action on the liver. The supply of this virgin oil is always limited. It is quickly bought up for medicinal purposes and found only in drug stores. Mr. Pennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, personally tests our olive oil. You are therefore positive of obtaining the true virgin oil imported direct from Southern France. We sell it at 40c one-half pint, 75c a full pint bottle. Get it at our store, The Bader Drug Co., Milwaukee & River streets. The Drug Store that makes a specialty of Drugs.

Parcel Post Maps Free with a year's subscription to the Daily Gazette. Value of the map, $1.00. They are on sale at Baker's Drug Store and Gazette office to the Gazette patrons, also at 25c, or 35c by mail.
